WALT identify the features of persuasive writing.

WILF:

- Pick out the different features of persuasive writing
- Highlight examples
- Describe why they are useful
- Identify any interesting vocabulary that is being used - what is interesting about it?

"SPAGtacular" Conjunctions

Recap time!

How many conjunctions – how many conjunctions can you think of? Make a mind map.

Where could each conjunction be used? Why?

Are they the most interesting ones you can think of?

Extra challenge: use a thesaurus to find a more interesting version of each conjunction. Do we always need the most interesting version?

Persuasive Writing...

What does it mean to persuade someone?

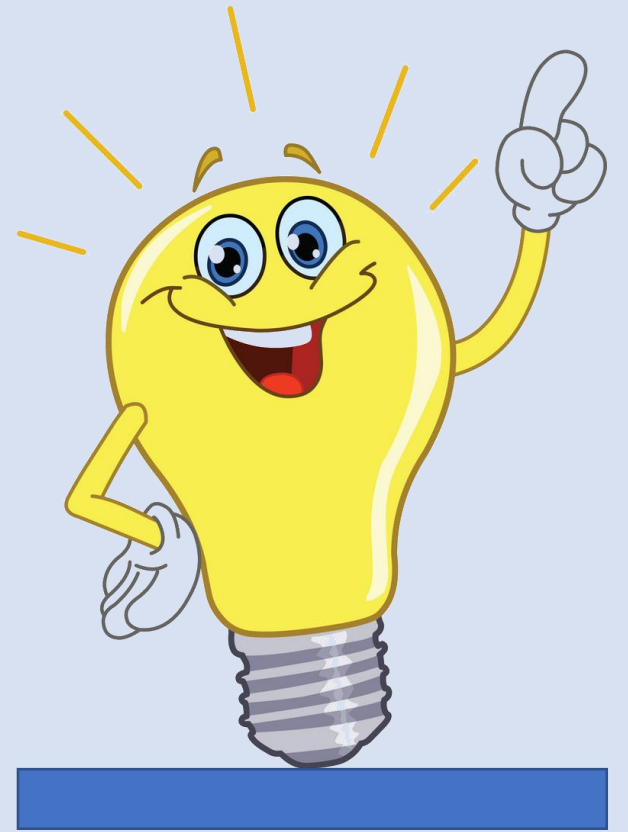

persuade

/pə'sweɪd/

verb

induce (someone) to do something through reasoning or argument.
"it wasn't easy, but I persuaded him to do the right thing"

When we persuade someone, we use facts and opinions to argue what we want to happen; we are trying to convince them to do something.

Today I would like you to box up the features of persuasive writing.

Please take a look at the example first to see what you need to do. Then, choose one of the two examples to box up.

Here is a checklist with some of the things you might find to help you along the way:

Title implies a point of view
Reasons to support the viewpoint
Facts and evidence to support reasons
Connectives to link ideas (e.g. however, therefore, furthermore)
Persuasive devices: Agreement (e.g. obviously, without doubt)
Powerful adjectives
Rhetorical questions
Conclusion to summarise and state opinion
