

WALT use casual conjunctions and adverbials for cohesion in our writing.

WILF:

Understand what a casual conjunction is used for Understand what an adverbial is used for Use casual conjunctions and adverbials in an argument.

What Do You Notice about the Highlighted Words?

I am usually late because I often forget to set my alarm.

My sister loves animals, so we went on a trip to the zoo for her birthday.

As a result of practising hard, I came first in the gymnastics competition.

What Do You Notice about the Highlighted Words?

They are all causal conjunctions, which are used to explain how things work or why something happens.

They can be:

- subordinating conjunctions, e.g. because;
- co-ordinating conjunctions, e.g. so;
- causal adverbials, e.g. as a result.

Sort the Causal Conjunctions

Sort the causal conjunctions into the correct category below:

Subordinating
conjunctions

Coordinating conjunctions

Adverbials

as a result therefore yet as accordingly consequently because hence so even though since now that

When Are Causal Conjunctions Used?

Causal conjunctions are used:

- to link independent clauses in the middle of sentences

e.g. I dislike dogs, so I don't enjoy visiting my uncle who has four huskies.

- to link independent clauses at the beginning of a sentence

e.g. Because I had forgotten my lunch, the school cook let me have a hot dinner.

- at the beginning of a sentence to refer to the sentence before e.g. I lost my homework on the way to school. Consequently, I will have to stay in to complete it at lunchtime.

- to add cohesion within paragraphs

e.g. Many schools have a rule that children wear uniform, which most parents and children are happy with. Wearing a school uniform means that pupils all look the same and nobody feels different. Accordingly, most pupils attend school looking smart and feeling proud to be part of their school.

Spin the Wheel

Click on the wheel to spin it to choose a causal conjunction to use within a sentence or sentences about the pictures :

Is It a Causal Conjunction?

Read each sentence to decide whether the highlighted words are causal conjunctions or not.

1. Even though it was a warm, sunny day, my mum said we could not fill the paddling pool.

☐

2. My little sister always follows me around, which really annoys me.

☐

3. Since we visited the Roman ruins, I have been reading history books to find out more information.

☐

Is It a Causal Conjunction?

Read each sentence to decide whether the highlighted words are causal conjunctions or not.

1. Even though it was a warm, sunny day, my mum said we could not fill the paddling pool.

2. My little sister always follows me around, which really annoys me.

3. Since we visited the Roman ruins, I have been reading history books to find out more information.

Your Activity:

Use the adverbials for cohesion and casual conjunctions mats to help you.

Write about something you are passionate about.

For example: deforestation, keeping oceans clean, not littering...

Use casual conjunctions and adverbials through your writing to help make your point and link sentences.